To whom it may concern,

I have been associated with the North Arkansas Central SPCA since their beginning. I am very proud as vice president of the board of directors to be a supporter of an organization whose response to the needs of the community regarding animal issues is unequalled in the state of Arkansas.

Within their mission to stop cruel animal abuse, neglect, and abandonment before it happens, they creatively look to the source issue developing programs to keep pets in the home rather than seeing them removed and given up to a shelter and needlessly placed for adoption to new homes.

Unlike other shelters in the area, they do not wait to be asked when pets and people are in crisis. They step up and ask, "Will this help?" Their solutions are always creative and innovative.

There is no other shelter in northern Arkansas that addresses as many areas of pets and people problems with direct services with only public funding raised in weekly fundraisers. They do so much with so little. With help from your foundation, they will do even more.

Thank you for your time,

Holly Wolf, director
